

ROBBERS ESCAPED ON THEIR WHEELS

DESPERADOES ROB THE BANK OF SHERBURNE, MINN.

They Kill Assistant Cashier Thorburn and Olaf Oestern, and With One Thousand in Bills Make Their Escape—Posse in Pursuit of the Bold Bandits.

Sherburne, Minn., Oct. 8.—The deliberate murder of two men was committed here Wednesday by highwaymen who robbed the Bank of Sherburne of $1,000. The affair was a terrible reminder of the great bank robbery at Northfield in 1876, in which the James and Younger boys were participants. About noon two strangers, one of whom looked like a mere boy, rode along the main street on bicycles. They were both well dressed but were unshaven and travel-stained. No particular attention was paid to them, as Sherburne is a town of but 300 persons, most of them workmen, and at that hour they were hurrying home to dinner.

The strangers loitered around the outskirts until nearly 1 o'clock. At that time they sauntered lazily down the street and stopped immediately in front of the bank of Sherburne. After a moment's talk they went into the bank, and the elder of the men engaged Assistant Cashier George Thorburn in conversation. One of the desperadoes secured possession of a roll of cash. Thorburn tried to prevent the men from getting away with the money, when they whipped out their revolvers and began firing and at the same time retreating. One of the bullets struck Thorburn in the neck, causing almost instant death from internal hemorrhage. The shooting within the bank aroused the town, and the citizens began running in that direction. The first man to reach the place was Olaf Oestern, a traveling salesman for the Wood Harvester company of St. Paul. He made a dash to grapple with the desperadoes, but was not quick enough, as he was struck in the head and fell dead at their feet.

They ran down the street firing at random, while persons in the street hurried to places of shelter. They ran about three blocks to some bushes where they had left their wheels. These they mounted and rode rapidly away toward the Iowa line, six miles to the south. Mayor C. E. Everett and the town marshal at once did all in their power to capture the bandits. Sheriff Hill was at Fairmont, the county seat of Martin county, twenty miles east, but he came here by train and organized a large posse of determined Sherburne men, which moved southward on horseback late in the afternoon. As the roads are in fine condition, the desperadoes could have gone forty or fifty miles before the posse started.

The only hope of the officers is that the bandits have gone to the woods in an attempt to hide, and may thus be overtaken. It is declared that if the men are captured they will be strung up to a limb of the first tree big enough to hold them. The men got away with the roll of money, about $1,000, which they snatched from the counter of the bank.

Gov. Clough has issued a proclamation offering a reward of $500 for the capture of the robbers. The sheriff's posse returned to town late at night, having found no trace of the desperadoes. A posse of 500 men left here at daylight.

UNITED STATES COMMERCE.

Ten Years Show an Average of a Billion and a Half Per Annum.

Washington, Oct. 8.—A statement issued by the agricultural department shows that the total commerce of the United States, including imports and exports, for the ten years ended June 30 last was $16,013,205,388, or a yearly average of more than $1,600,000,000.

Compared with the annual average of this ten-year period, the statement says the figures for 1896 show an upward tendency not quite so marked as the gain over 1895, but sufficient to warrant the hope that unless some new disturbing factor arises the commercial depression of 1894-95 is a thing of the past, and our commerce, the measure of general prosperity, will soon resume its former dimensions.

Pensions May Be Taken.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 8.—It has been decided by the Supreme court that the board of commissioners of the Soldiers' Home at Marshalltown, with the commandant as a party to the action, may be privileged to appropriate to use of the home such portions of the veterans' pensions in excess of $6 per month as they may see fit. The inmates of the home recently secured an injunction restraining the commission from touching the pensions. The Supreme court reverses the decision.

SETTLEMENT HANGS FIRE.

Canadian Pacific Officials and the Men Cannot Yet Agree on Details.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 8.—The strike on the Canadian Pacific road is not yet ended, although a few hours ago it looked as though harmony had been restored. The difference between the men and the company is over the interpretation of certain articles of agreement.

A telegram was received by each dispatcher and operator on the road Wednesday from Chief Telegrapher Piereson at Montreal ordering all the operators and dispatchers to return to work and use every effort to assist the company to resume business. Later a hitch occurred and Assistant Chief Dolphin of the Order of Telegraphers, Peoria Ill., who is here, says the Canadian Pacific road is tied up tighter than ever.

The question that is giving the trouble is what constitutes "grave misconduct," and those who were entrusted with a settlement of the dispute in the first instance are blamed for an oversight in not giving the fullest details under this head. As an instance of the meaning that may be put on the term General Superintendent Whyte believes, that to turn signals on against a train and so delay it when the road was clear would be "grave misconduct."

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 8.—Samuel Gompers, Thomas F. Tracey of Boston, John C. Dornell of Chicago and J. A. The convention discussed minor amendments to the constitution and resolutions. The committee on officers' reports approved of them and specially endorsed the idea of a Saturday half-holiday.

Belleville was reached before 10 o'clock. The run to Coulterville was rapid. The entire village was decorated in honor of the occasion. Pinckneyville turned out 2,000 strong, and waited for the special half an hour behind its schedule. At Duquoin more than 4,000 people crowded the grounds about the depot. An hour was given at Carbondale, where an ovation was given Private Tanner. Gen. Sickles, in the course of his speech said: "Altgeld has made the name of Illinois a by-word and a mockery. If he is a democrat, then I never was a democrat. Gen. Palmer never was a democrat. It is my private opinion that Palmer will vote for McKinley and Tanner."

The Grand Army post of Makanda telegraphed asking a speech. The train halted but a moment while 300 cheered the veterans. Cairo was reached shortly before 7 o'clock. About 500 people were assembled at the station to give the nominee a parting cheer. Mr. Bryan rested well during the night and was much refreshed.

The first stop was at Noblesville, Ind. Mr. Bryan was introduced by Judge Davis, and made a short speech. A stop of less than a minute was made at Cicero. Tipton turned out en masse to greet the candidate. A platform had been erected in the center of a big lot, and Mr. Bryan was taken off the train before the depot was reached, conducted through a livery stable and a line was kept from there to the platform. He was introduced by J. M. Fippen and discussed what he claimed to be the best financial policy. Kokomo was the next stop. As the train pulled into the town, the candidate stood on the rear platform and was greeted with cheers for his opponent from men wearing yellow badges. On his trip from the depot to the open lot where he spoke, Bryan and McKinley were cheered alternately, but when he arrived on the platform he was wildly cheered by thousands of people crowded together about the stand, and his remarks were liberally applauded.

In no place since his campaign first began has Mr. Bryan received a more hearty welcome than he received at Logansport. He addressed two large audiences—one at Riverside park and the other from a stand erected near the center of the city.

Mr. Bryan addressed a large and very enthusiastic audience at Hammond in the evening. A large number of his hearers were workmen.

Then he coolly put on his overcoat and went to a downtown restaurant, where he ordered an oyster stew and ate it with a relish.

He returned home shortly before 8 o'clock. The murder was discovered shortly afterward. While the police were trying to force the door the murdered shot himself with a revolver in the head and dropped dead to the floor.

LOSS IN FLORIDA.

Ioxham Chosen Governor by a Smaller Vote Than Last Election.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 8.—The returns of the state election Tuesday continue to come in slowly. Up to 7 p. m. yesterday complete figures had been received from only five of the forty-five counties, embracing seventy-two of the 632 election districts in the state. These five counties gave Bloxham (dem.) for governor 6,026, Gunby (rep.) 1,578 and Weeks (pop.) 665. In 1892 the vote in the same counties was: Mitchell (dem.) 6,997, Boskins (pop.) 297. WOMAN'S CLUBS MEET.

State Federation Begins Its Conventions at Springfield, Ill.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 8.—The women of the state began a three days' convention Wednesday. The delegations from Illinois women's clubs took the capital city by storm and the whole population feels a responsibility for the comfort of its many guests. It is a gathering of notable and progressive women and their representation reflected credit upon Illinois.

The day marked the opening of the second annual convention of the State Federation of Women's Clubs. The Springfield Woman's Club is the host. Every club in the state is represented and that means that 104 delegates are seated in the hall of representatives.

Almost every town or city of importance in the state where the women have a club belonging to the federation is represented at this convention. The attendance is much larger than last year and reveals a steady growth in provincial districts, where appeals for organization have not met hitherto with such encouraging response as in the larger cities. As might be judged from the list of cities and towns which have sent delegations there need be no fear that the progressive spirit will not soon take hold of the women in the southern and central part of the state.

Officers for the ensuing year will be elected Friday, and the rest of the day will be devoted to various entertainments.

Remodeling the French Artillery.

It has been practically decided that the whole of the French military artillery shall be remodeled, and the army gradually supplied at a very heavy cost with cannon of a new pattern. Now it transpires that for some time past the expediency of substituting another weapon for the Lebel rifle has been under consideration at the war office. The choice of the authorities is expected to fall on a rifle of the caliber of 6 1/2 millimeters, of which it is affirmed, 3,000,000 samples could be supplied at an expense of about £5,000,000. This, however, remains to be seen. So much store has been set by French experts on the Lebel arm by the war office authorities may well hesitate ere they decide on replacing it, the more so as the modification of the artillery will entail an extremely heavy outlay on the part of the already overburdened taxpayer.

When the churches open up this fall, will the persuasive campaign button be able to resist the attractions of the contribution box?

GOLLING HEIRS WIN THE SUIT AT LAW

WILL GET THEIR DUES FROM AN ESTATE.

The Case Was Tried Before Judge Woods at Chicago, and Resulted In a Decision In Favor of the Heirs, Including Alois Golling of This City.

Alois Golling, the popular proprietor of a restaurant, is several hundred dollars better off today as the result of a ruling made in Judge
Wood's court at Chicago.

The case involved property situated in Beaver Dam and valued at $6,000 that was formerly owned by one F.
J. Golling, who died in 1893. Upon his death the property was left to the heirs and Mr. Golling, of this city, was numbered among them.
Hugh McFarland, of Chicago, claimed that he was entitled to the property on the grounds that Golling before his death owed him a certain amount money which entitled him to hold the estate. The case was tried some time ago in Judge Seaman's court and was afterward taken to Judge Wood's court, the decision of this court being that McFarland should convey the property to the heirs of F. J.
Golling. Jackson & Jackson of this city, appeared in behalf of the Golling heirs, while the interests of Mr.
McFarland were in the hands of Attorney G. W. Haselton, of Milwaukee.

THE THREE BIG THINGS

That Made the Greatest Impression at the Late World's Fair.

Little trace is left of what was once the beautiful White City. Time has effaced the memory of all but a few of its wonderful sights.

We can all remember at least three of the most striking features—that ponderous implement of warfare, the Krupp gun; the wonderful Ferris wheel, and last but not least, the big
"Garland" stove—a mammoth cooker, large enough to supply meals for a tribe of giants. It loomed up above all other exhibits. It was twenty-five feet in height, thirty feet in width, and weighed ten tons.

These three productions have scattered. The Krupp gun is back in Germany, the Ferris wheel was constructed on the beautiful North Side of Chicago, the big "Garland" stove is still a wonderful attraction. On constant exhibition in Detroit in front of the works of the largest stove-makers in the world, the Michigan Stove company, it is seen and admired. It shows on an exaggerated scale the many and distinctive points of Garland stoves and ranges—"the world's best."

This line of heaters and cookers is well and favorably known everywhere so well known, in fact, that the market is full of imitations and counterfeits. The genuine "Gar-lands" can be had at the same price by simply calling for it by name and insisting upon it having them.

were twenty-four head of cattle,
among them ten new milch cows,
fifty-five hogs and a lot of farm machinery and household furniture, making a large sale.

then beyond any question that medicine about Hood's Sarsaparilla. Prepared by THE OVERFLOW OF LOCAL NEWS.

THE DEATH OF MR. H. W. WHITNEY

Father of Mrs. A. F. Burnham of This City Called Home.

The Monroe Evening Times gives the following sketch of the life of H. W. Whitney: Mr. H. W. Whitney passed this life at the Baptist hospital in Chicago, at 7 o'clock last evening. The information came in a telegram that stated the relatives would arrive in the city with the remains this evening.

"A week ago when Mr. Whitney left here to take treatment in Chicago, few were acquainted with the extent of his illness and no one dreamed that the end was so near. He was cut down by Bright's disease, although he suffered from other ailments. He has not enjoyed good health for a number of years and death came as a relief to a pain racked body. At last he sleeps peacefully and his sufferings are at an end.

"Mr. Whitney was born at Lisbon, Maine, in January, 1821. Early in life he went to clerking in New York City and afterward established himself in the dry goods business in Orono, Maine. Later he disposed of his interests there and went into the wholesale and retail dry goods business at Bangor. In 1857 he came to Monroe and went into business with a partner under the firm name of Whitney & Woodworth. He retired from the business and the name of the firm was changed to Woodworth & Parlin. He again embarked in the dry goods business with J. E. Treat as his partner, which continued some time and he sold his interests to Mr. Treat. He then organized the Monroe Machine & Foundry company and acted as its manager up to a year ago when he retired on account of poor health. He was interested in manufacturing and real estate interests in the east and in the west and has always been successful in his investments, accumulating considerable wealth. April 29, 1851, he was married to Harriet M. Treat, at Orono, Me., who survives him together with an adopted daughter, Mrs. Ada Burnham, of Janesville. A sister, Mrs. N. Gould, who by his death is the only survivor of the family, resides here, making her home with her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Treat.

"Mr. Whitney was a member of the I. O. O. F. and the Masonic Lodge in this city and was also a Knight Templar, belonging to the Janesville commandery. Politically he was a republican and was a man of liberal religious belief. Personally he was honored and respected by all who knew him and was one of the well known and highly esteemed citizens of the county.

PIERSON WANTS FREE NOTES TOO

Popular Gunsmith Talks of the Free Coinage of Silver.

"Why not extend the free coinage law so as to include the 'free coinage of notes'?" asked F. F. Pierson, the expert gunsmith, as he put the finishing touches on a key he was making for a Gazette man today. "Suppose I give you a note for any amount, showing that I had borrowed of you a certain sum of money in one hundred cent dollars, and agreed to pay the same at some future time. Suppose I had ample property, thus making the note good. Then suppose I turned about and said:

"Well, we have a new law now, and when I pay that note, you must take it up at half price. It is true that when I borrowed the money I got one hundred cent dollars of you, but the new law says that they were 'cheap dollars', and you must take fifty cent ones back in lieu of them. Of course I used your 100 cent dollars, and they were worth 100 cents each to me, but that is your hunt, no mine. This free coinage law lets me beat you out of half of what I owe you. Seeing that the government would not be responsible for the free coinage dollar, and it would simply go for what it is worth, why put my property behind my note? If the free coinage law authorizes the issuing of money without security, why not make it so that no security is needed for notes? Why not let the signature of the maker suffice, and exempt his property? Let us have free coinage of notes as well as silver.

"Then suppose we coined silver free. Would the present standard dollar be worth 100 cents after the free coinage was inaugurated, or would it fall to the value of the free coinage dollar—which the silver men admit would be a 'cheap' dollar, worth less than 100 cents. If the latter case was true, how much would the money of the country be reduced, by cutting the value of all the silver dollars now in existence to 53 cents each?

"Would the free coinage dollar bear the same stamp as the present dollar, or would it be different, so that the people could tell the free coinage coin—the one that would not have the nation's honor behind it—from the one that the security that Uncle Sam puts behind it, makes good for one hundred cents anywhere in the United States.

"I am not in favor of the free coinage of silver at the ratio of sixteen to one, until we also have free coinage of notes. If no security is necessary with the short weight silver dollar, why should security be asked for when a note is signed?

"Until someone answers these questions to my satisfaction and quotes authorities and proof—we can all give suppositions and say things that we have no documents to prove—I shall remain a 'gold bug'."

Great Chicago Day Celebration. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway will sell excursion tickets to Chicago and return, at half fare, on October 9, good for return until and including October 10, on account of the great Chicago Day celebration, one feature of which will be a pageantry parade of at least 100,000 people.

VIGOROUS MOTHERS AND STURDY CHILDREN ADMIRABLE.

Why so Many Women Are Childless—A Problem That Has Puzzled Physicians for Centuries.

Reproduction is a law of nature, and no picture of joy and happiness can equal that of the vigorous mother and her sturdy child.

Nature makes but few mistakes, and every thoughtful person must admit that a cause exists, why so many women are childless. The subject baffles the theories of physicians. Such cases are curable nine times out of ten, as evidenced by thousands of letters on file at Mrs. Pinkham's office. Many a darling baby owes its existence to Mrs. Pinkham's advice and the Vegetable Compound. This is not to be wondered at when such testimony as the following explains itself:

"I have taken three bottles of your Vegetable Compound, one package of Sanative Wash, one box of Liver Pills; and now I have a dear little babe four weeks old, and I am well. I have to thank you for this. "I have spent $200.00 for doctor's bills without obtaining any relief. For my cure I only spent $5.00. "I had been a victim of female troubles in their worst form; suffered untold agonies every month; had to stay in bed, and have poultices applied, and then could not stand the pain. "My physician told me if I became pregnant I would die. I had bladder trouble, itching, backache, catarrh of the stomach, hysteria and heart trouble, fainting spells and leucorrhoea. Can you wonder that I sing the praises of a medicine that has cured me of all these ills?"—MRS. GEO. C. KIRCHNER, 373 Belmont Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

AS WHEAT GOES UP.

Wheat dropped a shade yesterday, but the influences at work today were for a rise, as they have been all this month. Within three weeks the price has advanced about thirteen cents a bushel. A few days ago it was 70 cents a bushel in Chicago. Yesterday October wheat sold at 68 1/2. A year ago at this date it was 58 1/2 cents. If an average rise of 10 cents a bushel is maintained till the crop is sold over the price a year ago, it will mean a gain to the farmers of Minnesota and the two Dakotas of between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000 in solid gold. This simple fact is worth many thousand speeches for Mr. McKinley. It knocks the spots out of populism and free silver. It demolishes at one blow the pretense that the price of wheat is governed by the price of silver, which, instead of going up, has been steadily rig down while wheat has been out. It is now but 65 1/2 cents and a few years it was nearly 67 cents Populists ago.

by these fluctuations are demolished gument of populism, for the chief argument is that in as of the silver which brought about the gold standard prices of wheat and the declining This month's quotations for things, over again how absolutely shown demand regulate the price of and modities and how little depends on the standard.

We had the gold standard when wheat was over $1 a bushel at Chicago. We had the gold standard when, at the same place, it was 53 1/2 cents in July last. We had it when, within a little over two months, it advanced to 70 1/2 cents on Oct. 1, and have it now, when it is oscillating within one or two cents of that point, with a fair prospect of its going several cents higher. We are going to maintain it unimpaired in the election of McKinley, and the now assured certainty of this is shown in a greatly improved money market and a general upward tendency of prices all along the line.

WHEN MONEY WAS CHEAP.

Mr. Bryan's pleasing theory that plenty of cheap money means good times doesn't meet with the favor he expected in the south. There are too many people who remember war times—when barns were roofed with $10 bills, when there was enough money so that $4 only represented one pound of coffee and $200 went for a pair of shoes. Times were about as bad as they could be, a fact that the older generation haven't forgotten. The more money was issued the more prices went up. Food and clothing increased in price forty to sixty fold but the workingman was denounced for asking six times what he had formerly received for his labor. It takes more than a promise of cheap money to rally southern voters to Bryan this year although the force of party habit is strong upon them.

AN ARCTIC STUDIO.

A Lamp That Astonished and Delighted the Eskimo.

At the head of an unknown bay, beyond the waters of Inglefield gulf, the Falcon found temporary rest, and there, under a lofty peak and in the presence of a mighty glacier, we erected our two tiny buildings, says the Century. The site was chosen upon a terrace in the bed of an ancient glacier and near a rapid brook that ran down to the bay. The studio formed a wing of the larger building and was built of a three-inch grooved pine. It was made with double walls and had an air space of one foot, completely enveloping top, sides and bottom, and an additional air space of one inch formed by felt covering the walls and ceiling. On the side facing the west were placed double doors and on the south a double skylight and a window. Over three of the exterior walls was fastened the conventional tar paper. In this small abode, the northernmost studio in the world, with a ground space of 15x6 1/2 feet, and with a height of less than 8, my comrade and I were to dwell for more than a year. On Aug. 26, 1893, the studio was made habitable with two folding beds, trunks and boxes for seats and receptacles and oil cloth for floor covering. A long shelf was run along the west side of the room, near the ceiling, and under the skylight was placed a series of shelves. A clock with a homelike voice gave an air of habitableness to the room and from the ceiling was suspended a lamp with a chain for raising and lowering it—always an object of wonder and delight to the childlike Inuit or Eskimo. Near by were two other dwellings, but of sealskin, the homes of the Innuits Myo and Kashoo, who, with their families, had been induced to leave the neighborhood of Cape Parry and come with us.

HE GOT JUDGMENT.

But the Merchant Doesn't Want Any More of the Kind.

A Washington attorney is rather noted for the facility with which he forgets financial obligations. He has owed a certain grocer $3 for a year or two. The other day the merchant concluded to try a new course with him. Meeting him in his store, he said: "Judge, I have a customer who owes me a small bill and has owed it for a long time. He makes plenty of money, but won't pay. What would you do?" "I'd sue him," said the lawyer emphatically. "Well, I will put the account in your hands," and the merchant presented a statement of the account against himself.

"All right. I will attend to it," said the disciple of Blackstone.

A few days later the merchant received the following note from the lawyer:

"In the case of — against — I took judgment for full amount of your claim. Execution was issued and returned 'no property found.' My fee for obtaining judgment is $10. For which amount please send check. Will be glad to serve you in any other matters in which you may need an attorney."—Washington Star.

Canada's New Men.

Peter Brossolt of Belle River, Canada, distinguished himself some time ago by carrying off prizes at the county fair for embroidery, crochet, beadwork, etc., and the papers published paragraphs on "Canada's New Men." He has a rival in a town in Ontario. In preference to playing marbles, shinnay, or other boyish sports, a youth of that town used to sit with girls and surpass them in the use of the needle. One day he appeared with a pill box in hand, and exclaimed: "I've made the most delightful little pillow sham." He brought forth a miniature piece of work exquisitely finished. He not only did plain sewing and fancy work, but tried his hand at the family millinery. His fine embroideries were noticeable at fairs, and wedding presents to his girl friends were the work of his fingers. He is now interested in decorative art, and earns his bread by embroidering and hanging portieres, lambrequins, and other interior decorations.

Ready-Made Bridges.

"Ready-made bridges are something new under the sun," explained a well-known bridge builder, "for there are a number of concerns now which keep on hand a full stock of ready-made iron bridges of nearly all sizes. By this I do not mean that I can pick up ready-made a bridge as long as the Long bridge. I would have no difficulty, however, in finding ready-made and packed so that it could be shipped in less than a half day after the order was received a number of bridges as long as the so-called Chain bridge on the Upper Potomac. The customers for the ready-made bridges are mostly railroad companies, which, when they want anything, want it mighty bad, and are in an awful hurry for it."—Washington Star.

Deserved Hanging.

"I have here a pardon for you from the governor," said the sheriff to the cold-blooded murderer. "Ah," replied the latter. "No noose is good news, as the proverb says."—Judge.

MULLIGAN'S HAND PINCHED.

The Well Known Switchman Was Painfully Hurt Yesterday Afternoon

James Mulligan, the well known Chicago & Northwestern switchman, met with an accident yesterday that came near costing him his left hand. The accident happened at about 4:30 o'clock. While Mulligan was about to make a coupling his hand caught between the pin and the car, and was badly bruised and jammed. Dr. E. F. Woods says that amputation will not be necessary.

Sidney Bate, the ten year old son of Mrs. Charles Bates of 44 North Main street, had an arm broken by being run down by a bicycle rider.

PICKED A FARMER'S POCKET.

Men Who Asked for a Ride Were Not Very Grateful.

C. McLean, who resides on the H. W. Curtis farm, near Bowers, Walworth county, was returning home when he came upon two strangers, who asked him for a ride. The strangers rode but a short distance, but when Mr. McLean arrived home he found that his pocket had been picked of fifty dollars. A farmer who was in the city today said that the thieves had not been caught.

Money Per Capita.

Louisville Courier-Journal: It is "more money" the Bryans want. We have already shown that Bryan's policy of free silver would at first contract the currency of the United States to about one-third what it is at present.

Now, which nations have the most money, these with the gold standard or those with the silver standard? The silverites are fond of talking about per capita circulation.

The per capita circulation of the world is about $5.15.

The per capita of the gold standard countries is $18.

The per capita of the silver standard countries is nearly $4.30.

The gold standard countries have a per capita of silver alone of $5.40.

The silver standard countries have a per capita of silver of $2.32, the rest of their small circulation being mainly depreciated paper.

Under free coinage of gold and silver the United States had a per capita circulation in 1800 of $4.97; in 1896 we have one of $21.10.

The gold standard countries, with less than one-third of the world's population, have very nearly two-thirds of the world's currency circulation.

And yet Mr. Bryan would take the United States from the gold standard and place it upon the silver standard.

He Will Be Tried For Plain Assault and Battery As the Result of the Recent Trouble—Divorce Action Was Before Court Commissioner E. D. McGowan.

In the municipal court this morning the case of the state against James Monroe Mowers, charged with assaulting his father-in-law, Henry Dotzenrodt, came before Judge Phelps and was adjourned until October 22. Mahoney & Cunningham represent Mr. Mowers.

But that wasn't all.

MAKING PANSIES.

"Three faces in a hood."
Folk called the pansy so
Three hundred years ago.
Of course she understood.

Then, perching on my knee,
She drew her mother's head
To her own and mine and said,
"That's mother, you and me!"

And so it comes about
We three, for gladness' sake,
Sometimes a pansy make
Before the gas goes out.

HIS TELEPATHIC TIP.

"Telegram for you, sir."

It was the morning of the Derby day, and I had just looked into the office before starting for Epsom. I was at the time on the staff of The Sporting Courier, and, besides giving what is known in the sporting world as "midday finals," I usually "did" the home meetings.

The message surprised me, for it ran: "Don Pero is bound to win.—Dixey." I read it again and again. Don Pero was a rank outsider and had been looked upon by everybody as not having the slightest chance of a place. For confirmation one had only to look at the "latest London betting" to find that the horse stood at 50 to 1.

Yet Dixey, the trainer, had never before misled me, and I could not help feeling that there must be something in it.

I had previously decided that I would give as my final selections the first and second favorites and a good outsider for third place. But this telegram upset all my calculations, and yet I felt that I could not altogether ignore it.

I sat down at my desk and wrote out my copy. It ran as follows:

"There is no denying the fact that the favorite is in excellent condition, but I think that he will be beaten by a horse whose qualifications have hitherto been completely overlooked. I have no hesitation in placing the first three horses in this order: (1) Don Pero, (2) Windemere, (3) Nervine."

I was just thinking about starting when the chief sent for me.

"What does this mean, Mr. Goodman?" he said, as I entered the room. "This" evidently referred to my M.S., which he held in his hand.

"Are you referring to my Derby tip, sir?" I asked.

"But it's a 50 to 1 chance!"

"I can't help that," I replied, rather haughtily perhaps, "but I am assured that he is bound to win."

"Assured! By whom, pray?"

"Pardon me," I answered, "but my information is obtained from a strictly private source. I'll alter the wording of the paragraph, if you like, but I should prefer that it goes in as it is."

"I have no wish to interfere in your department," replied the chief. "Let it stand, if you are sweet upon it. If it comes off, it will be all right. If not, well, we shall be the laughing stock of everybody, from the Jockey club down to the youngest Newmarket tot."

I did not think that it was worth while having an argument about the matter, so took an opportunity of closing the interview and took a cab to Waterloo. When I reached the course, I made the best of my way to the paddock in the hope of seeing Dixey and having a talk with him before racing began, but he was nowhere to be seen.

I soon found that some of my colleagues wanted to have a chat with me, for The Sporting Courier, with my final in, had created quite a sensation.

Jimmy Berners of The Starter was very forcible in his language and said some nasty things about my inability to provide the racing world with information that was of any value.

In my anxiety I endeavored again to find Dixey, for I felt that he must know something that was not common knowledge.

Though I looked everywhere for him, I could not see him. He was evidently going himself out of the way.

Through the horrible thought rushed a hoax my mind that the telegram was a hoax and I felt a cold perspiration fact I did over me. As a matter of which horse care a brass farthing never to bet, but for I make a rule tation as a tipster that my reputation was in no particular stake.

It was in no particular stake.

My entrance gave the cue of hilarity, and my reception a burst of merriment. They chaffed me mercilessly about my unfortunate but I took it all in good part, while inwardly vowing that I would fire off some of my suppressed anger upon Dixey if his precocious outsider finished where everybody expected him to finish—last.

There is no need for me to enter into any lengthy description of the event, but it is just necessary to mention one or two facts about the most sensational Derby on record, and one that will never be forgotten by those who had the good fortune to witness it.

I nervously looked around for Don Pero. Yes, he was there all right, but what an ill favored looking animal compared with the others! His jockey, too, was merely a stable lad, but I thought that I detected a gleam of confidence in his eye and a look of fixed determination upon his boyish face.

"Now they're off," is the cry. No, it is a false start. The favorite has broken away. His supporters standing around me are quivering with excitement, and many of them give vent to audible groans.

The horses face the starter once more, and in another minute we see the white flag fall and know that they have been dispatched on their fateful journey.

In the first part of the race they seem to be all together, but as they near Tottenham corner the favorite begins to steel ahead. I look for Don Pero—he is nearly last. The corner is turned with Windemere well in front.

"The favorite wins!" "The favorite rumps home!" is the cry of all hands.

But what is that steadily creeping up on the outside? As I live it is Don Pero! Don Pero will not be shaken off, and he gradually bears the leader down, down, as they near home.

It is doubtful to tell from where we are standing which horse has won, but it appears to be the favorite, although Don Pero was extremely close up. At length the numbers appear on the telegraph board: 16—24—4.

I could hardly believe my eyes. Sixteen is Don Pero's number, 24 Windemere's and 4 that of another outsider.

There was a deadly silence all around. No enthusiasm, no shouting, no jubilation of any kind. Blank despair is plainly written on the majority of faces near me. Then one of my colleagues turned to me:

"What does it mean, Goody? You are evidently in the know."

"It means," I said, determined to have my revenge upon them, "that if you want to get a correct tip you must come to me," and with that parting shot I hastened to the paddock, where I saw Dixey surrounded by a crowd of inquiring sportsmen.

"Thanks very much for the wire, old man," I said in the course of the conversation.

"Wire?" he replied, with a look of surprise on his face. "What wire?"

"Why, you wired me that your horse would win?"

"What on earth are you talking about, Goody? I never wired to you."

"Well, I've got the wire here," I said as I felt in my pocket for it. But it was not there. I searched each pocket, but in vain. I must have left it at the office. Dixey began to laugh.

"How do you think I should have tipped such an outsider if I had not heard from you?" I asked him, almost angrily.

"Hush! Not so loud," said Dixey, looking round in a half frightened manner. "You fancy I wired to you. Quite a mistake, I assure you. I intended to do so, but I thought that it would be no good. That's all, Goody, really."

I saw it all. Dixey had sent the telegram and didn't want anybody to know that he had done so. All right. I would keep his secret.

When I returned to town, I went straight to the office. I looked everywhere, but could find no trace of the telegram.

I rang for Simmons. As he entered I said:

"Simmons, have you seen the telegram that you brought me this morning?"

"Telegram, sir? I never brought you a telegram."

I could hardly believe my ears. There was a mistake somewhere. But I gave it up as a bad job and went off to the club. Everybody there was most enthusiastic and congratulatory. After we had settled down in the smoking room I told the boys the whole story.

They were rather incredulous at first, until Jimmy Berners burst out, "I tell you what it is, Goody, old chap, it's a clear case of telepathy."

"But I had the telegram," I said.

"You fancied you did," was his reply. "That's part of the business. You were thinking of Dixey. Dixey was thinking of you. Dixey thought he would send you a wire. You thought you received it. That's all."

And that is the true story of how I received my "telepathic tip."—Exchange.

"Auld Robin Gray."

Lady Anne Barnard wrote "Auld Robin Gray" when she was 21. It was published anonymously in 1776, and various persons claimed the authorship.

Lady Anne did not acknowledge it was her own until two years before her death, when she wrote to Sir Walter Scott and confided the history of the ballad to him. It appears that the gifted lady was induced to write the song by a desire to see an old Scottish air, "The Bridgroom Grat When the Sun Gaed Doon," fitted with words more suitable than the ribaldry which, for want of better, had been sung to it. The name of "Auld Robin Gray" was taken from an ancient herd of Balcarres. Lady Anne was a daughter of James Lindsay, fifth earl of Balcarres. She married Andrew Barnard, son of Thomas, bishop of Limerick, and they went out to the Cape, where he died in 1807. Lady Anne returned to London and lived with her sister in Berkeley square until 1812. The sister's house was a literary center and was frequented by Burke, Sheridan, Windham, Douglas and the Prince of Wales, who were all habitual visitors.

Lady Anne won the lifelong attachment of the prince regent. She died in 1825, in her seventy-fourth year. No one has ever questioned Lady Anne's claim to the authorship of the "Auld Robin Gray," and, upon that point, there is no doubt.

It is necessary to mention that the writing of a world famous song containing the gist of the story and the plot, by Paradis de la Cour, entitled "Les Constantes Amours d'Alexis,"—S. J. Adair in Lloyd's.

Opinions and Their Truth.

There is the greatest difference between presuming an opinion to be true, because with every opportunity for testing it it has not been refuted, and assuming its truth for the purpose of not permitting its refutation. Complete liberty of contradicting and disproving our opinion is the very condition which justifies us in assuming its truth for purposes of action, and on no other terms can a being with human faculties have any rational assurance of being right.—J. S. Mill.

Pat Was Astonished.

An Irishman was run over by a troop of horse and miraculously escaped unhurt. "Down upon your knees and thank God, you reprobate," said one of the spectators. "Thank God for what? Is it for letting a troop horse run over me?" asked Pat.—London Spectator.

Tardy Honor to a Good Man.

In the year 1789 frost destroyed the corn crop of the infant settlement which afterward grew into the city of Marietta, and the pioneers and their families were reduced almost to a state of famine. It so happened that Isaac Williams, a pioneer, who owned a tract of land on the Virginia side of the Ohio river, opposite the destitute colony, had a good crop of corn. Speculators offered him a large price for it, but he refused to sell. He gave it free or sold it for a merely nominal price to the poor settlers over the river and thereby saved them from famine. Isaac Williams and his wife Rebecca were buried on their own land in a lonely spot selected by themselves. The land was long since sold, the graves are sadly neglected and the people of Williams-town, W. Va., and of Marietta, Ohio are taking steps to erect a suitable monument to the generous old pioneers. It looks as if they were chargeable with ingratitude for not having done so long ago.

Mannerisms of Statesmen.

Mr. Gladstone had a number of quiet mannerisms, the most peculiar of which was the way, when puzzled by a question or a point at debate, he would scratch the top of his head with the thumb of his left hand, the palm upturned or the fingers tightly closed. When seated with his legs kept closely together, his head resting on the back of the bench and his eyes closed, he would hug himself vigorously as if he were pleased with himself for something he had done. Lord Beaconsfield came by the surname of "Sphinx" from the way he would sit, with his knees crossed, his arms folded, absolutely motionless. But if a question were put he would spring up and with right elbow tight to his side play with his eyeglass and rattle off at railway speed whatever he had to say. A smile or a frown upon his face was the making of an epoch in parliamentary annals.—Tit-Bits.

CHILDREN'S FASHIONS.

Notes Concerning Dress For Little Folk of Tender Years.

Many very elegant costumes for fall and winter wear are made of wool and velvet, the latter composing all the accessories. Passementerie and fine buttons form the decoration. Fur, black or very dark, is also effectively used on cloths and other woolen goods of a light tone or plaid, light and dark together.

The custom of clothing very little children in white is a pretty one and is the fashionable one at present. From the child's birth until it can walk alone, mothers keep it entirely in white, never allowing any color whatever. The frocks are of muslin, nainsook or plaid in summer. In winter they are of cashmere, veiling or other washable goods, light but warm. The cotton goods are in the Mother Hubbard style, with short sleeves, and fasten behind. The woolen ones are less full, since they must be lined, and have large, long sleeves buttoning at the wrist, to protect the arms. The lining may be of thin flannel or cotton flannel.

Cloth, French flannel and eiderdown flannel are all suitable for the coat or cape. The latter is worn only in extreme infancy, the coat affording greater protection as soon as the child begins to hold itself up and look about. A long coat with a pelerine is best for young babies, while for those in short clothes there are little straight, double breasted sacks, warm but not cumbersome.

For 3 or 4 years old dresses of figured nainsook or of pink or blue flannel or cashmere are pretty. Striped French flannels are also suitable. After the sixth year little boys assume more masculine attire, while little girls are no longer confined to pale and delicate shades, but may wear red, navy blue, plaids and other warm colors.

Today's sketch shows a little girl's gown of flax blue wool goods with white dots. The skirt has three bands of narrow white braid. The blouse bodice opens over a vest of plain blue goods which is trimmed with bands of braid and four large buttons. The large sailor collar of plain goods is trimmed in the same way. The full, short sleeves have a plain braided band at the elbow and the plain belt is braided.

Straight Sacks—Fall Importation of Hats A Walking Costume.

The straight sack is going to make a tremendous effort for popularity this winter. For several seasons it has been hovering on the horizon and attempting to introduce itself to favorable notice, but so far it has not met with much success. Here and there a woman who has a large wardrobe and a fancy for novelties has tried the sack for the sake of variety, but, as a rule, it has been ignored. Now there are symptoms that it will be seriously taken up, and there are a variety of models shown. Some are plain and straight, some are plaited, some have organ folds and some a wattleau back. Yokes or lengthwise bands of passementerie often form a finish and pampilles of jet, beads or spangles alternate with straps or bands of fur. The collar also is trimmed with fur, the band continuing down the front with a stole or boa effect. The sleeves are rather large at the lower part and are adorned with variously shaped cuffs.

The fall importations of hats show many fine felts, the brim slightly lifted or bent. In all possible shades. They are trimmed profusely with ostrich feathers and have often some sort of upright ornament of a striking character.

The materials which will be worn in the near future are already indicated by the signs of the times. Broche silk, velvet and satin will be favored among silken fabrics and smooth cloths and rough and hairy goods among woolen ones. This hairy effect will be seen in both plain and fancy weaves, including plaids. The latter have enjoyed much greater favor in France than elsewhere, the American fancy having lately been inclined to particularly slight them.

The illustration shows a walking costume of violet cloth. The front is cut in panels, which are edged with mauve silk and which are separated by plaited bands of black taffeta. The blouse bodice of plaited black taffeta has a sort of pelerine and bertha of violet cloth edged with mauve silk. Small cloth tabs form a basque, and the belt is also of cloth. The rennaissance sleeves of mauve silk have draped puffs of black taffeta. There is a full ruche of mauve gauze bordered with black taffeta. The hat, of black Neapolitan braid, is trimmed with violet ribbon and lilies of the valley, with their foliage.
